OBSERVATIONS

"I do not recognize in any city whatsoever of my acquaintance the right kind of push and industry for the carrying on of a competitive business. Moreover, I believe most utterly that the less the government goes into business the better it is going to be for the municipalities considered as a whole, and for the surrounding territories of which the municipalities are only a part, and certainly for the taxpayers, state and municipal. It is not good business for any of them that an American municipality should enter upon a competitive business."
